New guidance

The Care Quality Commission (CQC) and NHS England recently published some new guidance (found here) on how they will be assessing the well-led key question. In it, they describe the importance of lifelong learning, innovation, and evidence-based practice informed by up-to-date and relevant resources.

The guidance includes links to best practice and resources for knowledge and evidence, and the Knowledge and Library Services can support you with further resources. Below are just a few of our books on evidence-based practice and leadership:

You can also access BMJ Best Practice and UpToDate via the Extranet or online anywhere with an OpenAthens account (register here) to find the latest clinical information.

The Research Department have provided details of a clinical research study being supported by the Trust:

Minder is an award-winning study that aims to improve the lives and wellbeing of people with dementia. The aim of this sub study is to gain the perceptions and thoughts of the use of medical devices for people living with dementia.

The Research Department would be grateful if you could spare 5 (ish!) minutes to complete the survey.

Please share this with your contacts within the Trust as everyone can participate and this study can be forwarded to your friends and family too.

Please click HERE or scan the QR code below (if you have a smartphone).
